

Barns Green Players Comedy Play – Look Who’s Talking

The Barns Green Players are now busy rehearsing for another of its popular Comedy Evenings when Derek Benfield’s comedy play Look Who’s Talking will be performed on two evenings and one afternoon in May. The performances will be on Friday the 5th (8pm) and Saturday 6th May (2pm and 8pm) in the Barns Green Village Hall.

Look Who’s Talking, is a two Act play written by Derek Benfield which deals with the trials and tribulations of deceit and misunderstanding within marriage. It begins as devoted couple, Sheila and Andrew prepare to entertain with Sunday afternoon lunch. The story itself is a farce in the true sense. The situation descends into mayhem as some uninvited guests turn up and the hosts begin to weave a web of lies and half-truths to hide their own possible infidelities, unaware that the other is doing the same. This leads to a complicated and hilarious series of misunderstandings and mistaken identities

The play is being Directed by Winks Parrish and Warren Blanchard. Winks commented, “Look Who’s Talking is a very funny play. The plot and the script are hilarious and Warren and I are really looking forward to working with the cast and putting together what we are sure will be an outstanding show”

This is one of Barns Green Players’ very popular comedy 'bring your own food' shows where the audience sits at tables of eight and enjoys drinks brought to the tables from our licensed bar.
